

Monitor. Analyze. React.

Your supply chain—AI-enabled, connected, and actionable.

Syncrofy is an AI-powered, supply chain analytics data visibility platform that empowers you to see and understand your supply chain data in real-time on any device. It helps alleviate stress on IT resources and allows your business to operate faster and smarter, immediately.

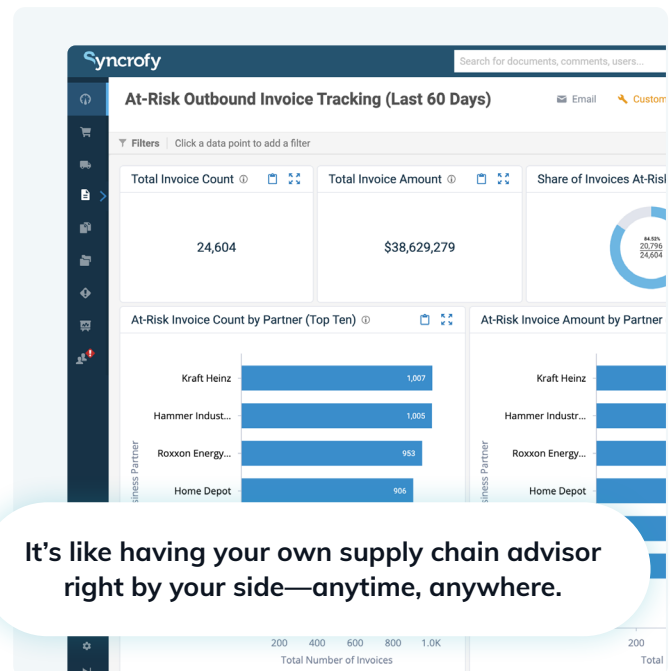

Real-time, AI-powered insights to break down barriers across your supply chain

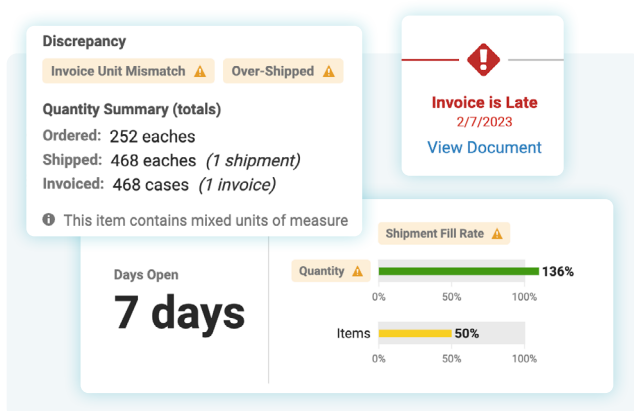

You may be surprised to know that only 6% of supply chain professionals claim to have full visibility into their supply chain. It's time for that to change. With Syncrofy you'll have complete visibility across your network—from purchase order to shipment—and advanced, real-time analytics and insights backed by predictive modeling will help you prioritize challenges and solve problems before they occur.

Predict delays, eliminate fees, and grow your profits

Syncrofy will enable you to be proactive and eliminate costly fines and fees, predict and prevent late payments and shipments, and realize revenue faster. And with no customization or configuration required, you'll get the most accurate information with minimal work upfront.

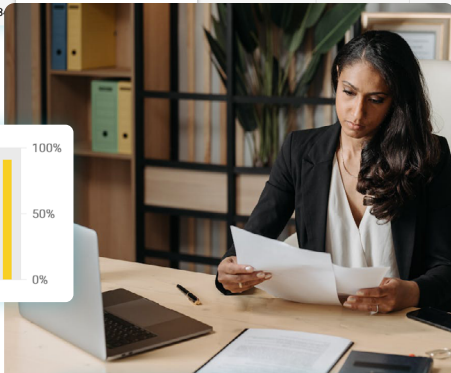

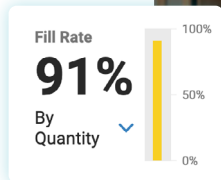

It's like having your own supply chain advisor right by your side—anytime, anywhere.

Identify, prioritize, and resolve issues with just a few clicks

With Syncrofy, you can reconcile invoices against purchase orders, shipment documentation, and receipts to identify quantity and price discrepancies. Powerful visualization technology lets you analyze trends to compare suppliers on key metrics like fill rate, lead time, errors, and delays so you can order more from your best suppliers and work with your least efficient to improve their performance.

A centralized platform and single version of the truth

Tailored for supply chain professionals, Syncrofy consolidates information that's scattered throughout multiple systems and makes it accessible for all users in all departments. And since different departments and trading partners view and interpret supply chain data in slightly different ways, you'll have everyone on the same page without any grey area.

Create a data-driven culture around your supply chain

It may feel like a challenge, but it's easy when you have the right tool. Syncrofy is your catalyst to developing a data-driven, self-service culture around your supply chain by enabling everyone in your organization to share information, work together, and solve problems collaboratively, without relying on IT resources.

Real, measurable results

Syncrofy's AI-powered, supply chain visibility enables you to see the blind spots left by your other software platforms and streamline communication between your internal teams and trading partners.

Reduce revenue leakage by up to 30%

Eliminate late payments to suppliers

Save valuable time you spend on research by up to 53%

Dramatically improve customer satisfaction by up to 65%

Reduce chargebacks by up to 30%
